Five Meet Violent Deaths in Ohio Over Week-end

THREE ARE WRECK VICTIMS

Others Die as Result of Murders and Suicides

LANCASTER, N. H.—(By United Press)—Six members of one family were killed in a grade crossing accident near here Sunday when the driver of a motor car attempted to beat a Boston and Maine train across the tracks. The dead are: Mr. and Mrs. William Donahue and their four children Mary 17, William 15, Charles 13 and Thomas 8. Their car was tossed 200 feet when struck by the train.

COLUMBUS—(By Associated Press)—Murders, automobile accidents, suicides and other fatal accidents took a death toll in Ohio over the week-end of nine persons.

In addition many other persons were injured, many seriously, in automobile mishaps and industrial accidents.

Albert Malloy, 20, was found pinned under his automobile two miles north of Dayton, the victim of an automobile accident.

John E. Johnson, a Cleveland recluse, was found murdered in his home.

Paul Brown, eight, son of Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Brown, of Columbus was instantly killed when the automobile truck on which he and a number of other boys were riding was struck by an automobile throwing the lad under the truck's wheels.

J. O. Cosman, of Greenfield, was found dead under his automobile east of Gahanna. Coroner Murphy of Franklin said he believed Cosman was seized with a heart attack.

Raymond Castle, 28, of Bristol was killed when the airplane in which he was riding crashed to the ground near Warren.

Benjamin Johnson, 27, was shot and killed at Youngstown, after an argument over a gambling game.

Edward McLaughlin, 41, was found dead in his automobile at Cleveland following a fight in a soft drink parlor.

James Horsey, 73, committed suicide at his residence home.

Natze 33 was scalded to death at Cleveland when he jumped into the water of his bath tub which was filled with scalding water.

MYSTERY SLAYING
CLEVELAND—(By Associated Press)—Police today were still without a clue to the mysterious slaying of John E. Johnson, 50-year-old hermit, who was beaten to death in his garage which he had for three years been working to convert into a four-room cottage. A hammer and a club, both blood-stained and with which he is believed to have been killed, were found beside the body.

Johnson had lived alone in the room which he used as a kitchen, dining room, living room, work shop, bed room and study since the death of his wife a year ago last June. His body was found under a table in the room.

In solving the death, the police are also confronted with the problem of how the motive was a neighbor who said Johnson always carried a pistol.

Johnson found a bottle on the table and he believed that it was the sole motive. The wallet usually containing about $100 neighbors told the police.

On the other hand, a watch and a number of trinkets were not found. These trinkets were in a box of old cigar boxes, in addition to these the police found an assortment of other articles.

Several hundred dollars in cash and several hundred dollars in bonds and was found, and all these were worked on his cottage alone.

There were enough tools to outfit a carpenter.

Johnson had added one floor and built what was to have been a garage. In a shed was found an automobile for which Johnson had worked twice the original cost made by a company.

Johnson wanted it for exhibition.

GIRLS SHUNNED BY PRINCE

Wales Refuses to Join in Dances Aboard Ship

BY CHARLES W. SUTTON
ABOARD THE S. S. BERENGARIA—(By United Press)—So far the Prince of Wales has followed numerous debts and dotting mamas who rushed to obtain passage on the Berengaria on which he is sailing to America.

He hasn't danced nor has he mixed in other gaudy affairs aboard the vessel, contenting himself with long strolls on the top deck. He usually is accompanied by General Trotter and Captain Lascelles. He sings to himself on these strolls.

Sunday the prince attended church but did so as inconspicuously as possible.

There is to be no letup in the prince's athletic life. He has made arrangements with the instructor of the gym for daily exercises. These will be in addition to the long strolls on deck.

The prince has been content with a plain lounge suit so far on the trip, even wearing it Saturday night when he gave several American girls a disappointment by glancing into the crowded ball room and then leaving without dancing.

LAWYERS MEET

State Bar Association Opens
Convention at Cedar Point

CEDAR POINT—(By Associated Press)—Whether the Ohio State Bar Association, as an organization, will support and participate actively in a movement to unify courts in the state, probably will be one of the most important issues to be decided at the annual summer meeting of the organization which opened here today.

It will make its report, thru the chairman, John A. Cline, of Cleveland, late this afternoon.

This evening, Alfred Bettman of Cincinnati, will speak on "Unification of Courts."

There have been several plans advanced for the consolidation of all courts. One contemplates the doing away with justices of the peace; providing for uniform municipal courts, the improvement of the administration of criminal justice, raising the salaries and lengthening tenure of judges, simplification of civil procedure, creation of a chief justice and the creation of a rule-making or legislative department.

LOST FLIER FOUND OFF GREENLAND

Adrift Three Days and Nights
in Icy Seas

PICKED UP BY AMERICANS

Plane is Destroyed at Request of Commander

ABOARD U. S. S. RICHMOND—(By United Press)—The country where Lieut. Locatelli was forced down is a frozen hell with ashens skies, deep thick fog and innumerable ice floes which grind before the ice sheeting peaks and glaciers.

For hundreds of miles the shores are barren of civilization. When the cloud and fog blanket lifts the polar star can be seen almost directly overhead. There is a lurid afterglow which never leaves the skies.

Locatelli carried rockets in his plane which he used in attracting the rescuers.

WASHINGTON—(By United Press)—Lieut. Locatelli, Italian aviator who has been missing since Thursday, has been picked up by the U. S. S. Richmond off the coast of Greenland, the army air service was advised officially here today. A dispatch received by naval radio from the U. S. S. Raleigh stated that the Richmond had picked up Locatelli at 11:40 last night.

The dispatch read: "Locatelli found latitude 59 56 longitude 30 43. Sighted 2324 (11:24 p. m.) Embarked passengers: All well."

The latitude and longitude stated in the message is just off the west coast of Greenland, according to naval officials.

The finding of the Italian flier who became lost while accompanying the American world fliers in a perilous hop from Iceland to Greenland Thursday afternoon had been pursued by U. S. cruisers, airplanes and motor boats for more than three days.

The message was interpreted as meaning that the Italian had been forced down in the fog banks raised by melting icebergs just before he reached the Greenland coast.

If this is correct he has been buffeted about in his plane in the gale-swept icy seas for three nights and three days.

FUEL RUNS SHORT
The cruiser was running short of fuel oil just as Locatelli was found. It was feared by officials here that the hunt might have to be abandoned by most of the cruisers for many hours.

The last previous word from Locatelli was received from one of the cruisers stationed at guardship along the route. He was seen plunging along in the fog far ahead of the American fliers toward the Greenland coast. Then he dropped from sight.

Lieut. Smith, commander of the American fliers, notified officials here that he believed the Italian had become separated from the party because of icebergs. Smith felt that some trace of the Italian would be found and continued on with Lieut. Nelson to Iqviut where the Americans are now replacing their engines, preparatory to hopping off for Labrador probably the last transatlantic flight on their schedule.

FOOD SUPPLY
Locatelli had rationed for seven days aboard his plane and it is felt that he did not suffer from lack of food. It did not advise the war department of the next stop but it is presumed by officials that the cruiser is proceeding to Pictou, N. S. She had planned to go to this port for refueling.

The Americans probably will get into Indian Harbor, Labrador, tomorrow night and the Richmond, with her rescued castaways should arrive at the Labrador coast about the same time. The time stated in the dispatch is taken to be Greenwich mean time, which is considerably ahead of American time. Greenwich time has been used in previous dispatches.

WEALTH BLAMED FOR MURDER OF FRANKS

Crime Traced from Childhood
by Clarence Darrow

BOYS' DESIRES GRATIFIED

Defender Declares All Youth
Without Thought

CHICAGO—(By Associated Press)—Character analysis based on heredity and environment was the theme of Clarence S. Darrow today as he pleaded anew before Judge John R. Caverly for the lives of Richard Loeb and Nathan Leopold Jr., kidnapers and murderers of Robert Franks.

The "weird mad act" of the youths was mentioned only incidentally as the veteran of the American bar went back of the crime itself to trace from childhood the influences which had surrounded his clients. The effects of these he acknowledged could not be told with certainty but, limits of human knowledge were blamed for that.

"Wealth opening the doors to no ways which led to denial of desire was the terrible misfortune in this terrible case," Mr. Darrow said, and then he took up the cases of each of the boys starting with Loeb. He spoke of him as "Dickie" and said that phantasy of being able to produce a perfect crime grew naturally from the youth's habitual reading of detective stories, superimposed upon a brain forced like a hot house plant to absorb book after book.

WORK OF NATURE
"His parents might have done better if they had not had any money," said Darrow.

"Nature is strong and pitiless," he philosophized. "She works in her own mysterious way and we haven't much to do with it ourselves. Let us be honest with each other. We all know youth is without thought and without a care," and he drew audible comment from his audience as he added.

"Congressmen, judges, lawyers, yes, even states attorneys have in youth done something that was wrong. That they were not caught is their own good fortune."

He quoted St. Paul's epistle: "When I was a child I saw as a child, I spoke as a child, I thought as a child but when I became a man I put away childish things."

"That was written twenty centuries ago," he said, "but let us not forget it here."

Leopold, Mr. Darrow said, was "an intellectual machine running without a governor and without balance without emotional life in any degree."

The pleader spoke of him as "a machine" explaining he thought the family nickname more fitting than the state's attorney's use of the word "man."

This intellectual machine was, of course, not understood by his father, said Mr. Darrow, and he launched into a dissertation of the Nietzschean philosophy of the

WOMEN TAKEN IN SHOOTING CASE

Three Accused as Assailants of Cincinnati Man

CINCINNATI—(By Associated Press)—Technically charged with shooting to kill, Mrs. Mary T. O'Dowd, Mrs. Barbara Arnold, and Miss Bab M. Mullen, all related to the former Republican leader, Michael Mullen, were to appear in municipal court today following the shooting Saturday night of Daniel E. O'Dowd, former husband of Mrs. O'Dowd.

The three women told the police that O'Dowd after beating his former wife had threatened to kill them. Police and physicians claimed O'Dowd was intoxicated when taken to a hospital suffering from two bullet wounds inflicted by either Mrs. Arnold or Miss Mullen, who told the officers they fired thru the door of a bed room in which they had taken refuge.

He had been carving at the panels of the door with a large butcher knife, they said. The police corroborated this part of the story when they found large cuts in the door.

After they had told their story the women were released on their recognizance.

Approval Sought in Lima-Ottawa Highway Estimates

Approval of plans for paving the Lima-Ottawa, or old Perryburg-rd, from the end of West-at road to Cairo, were placed before the county commissioners for approval Monday by Charles Ash, state road engineer.

Ash will forward the plans to Columbus as soon as Commissioners sign them. If the plans are approved at the state highway department commissioners can issue bonds at once to build the road.

Plans for the road were originally drawn up two years ago, but following an inspection of the road by a committee of the representative of the federal bureau of roads, orders were given to abandon the old plans and draw up new ones.

Changes made in the plans are widening the road from 15 to 18 feet and widening bridges from 20 to 24 feet.

VOTERS TO PASS ON TWO-MILL ROAD LEVY

APPROVAL GIVEN MEASURE

Funds Needed to Care for Country Highways

COMMISSIONERS ACT

Good Roads Association to Aid in Passage

Shall Allen Co. property continue to pay a 2 mill levy for road purposes?

That the voters of the county will be asked to decide the question at the polls in November was made certain when county commissioners by a resolution authorized a referendum on the levy.

The proposed levy for 2 mills exempted from other taxes will run for five years and is calculated to produce more than $200,000 annually for road building in Allen Co.

County commissioners decided to place the question before the people at the request of the Allen Co. Good Roads Association. Representatives of the association have called on the commissioners on several occasions for action.

They point out that the 2 mill levy passed by the people in 1919 will expire this year. Unless the people vote additional money, the county will practically be without road funds in 1924.

LEAVY AFFAIR

Commissioners were informed that if the 2 mill levy is not replaced in some manner the country roads of the county will go to pieces in three months and it will be impossible to get any place in the county save on the paved state and county highways.

There are about 50 miles of paved roads in the county, and nearly 1,000 that are not paved but are piked with loose stone. Gravel has not been used to any appreciable extent in Allen Co.

Resolution passed by the commissioners submitting the question to the electorate will go on a special ballot at the November election.

Election board officials Monday were not certain whether the question has to be certified to the 21 days prior to election or 30 days. Commissioners have declared the proposal will be certified to the board within a week.

HARD FIGHT

Officials of the Allen Co. Good Roads association declared Monday that they anticipated a hard battle to carry the proposed levy. The average citizen is tired of paying taxes, and on first thought will vote No on any question that hits his purse, no matter how meritorious.

Nevertheless they predicted that the levy will carry, because farmers in most instances believe that on the continuation of the levy depends his communication with his market.

Money derived from the 2-mill levy, is used for repair, construction and maintenance of all roads in the county, with the exception of state and federal highways.

The legislature in passing the law authorizing such a levy, contemplated aiding the farmer on the seldom traveled by road who has been taxed for years without benefit as well as the dweller on a main highway.

Under operation of the law which expired this year mud roads have practically disappeared from Allen Co.

PRATT DIVORCE PAPERS SERVED AT TRIAL MONDAY

Fireplace Dominant Attraction, Lays Foundation For Room

The fireplace is the center of a homelike living room. It is the most dominant attraction, laying a foundation for the entire scheme of the room.

There is a fireplace in every major room in a home. A living room is not a living room without a fireplace.

First of all the type of fireplace for the room is selected. It is for makes for the right feeling of comfort and pleasure. A colonial fireplace, for instance, is good only in a home designed both in style and in for the period. A heavy wood and high mantel looks good only in a large, roomy room.

But for the average living room the best type is of the medium size, its height about five feet or slightly more, not protruding too far from the wall and with simple lines.

CHIMNEY CONSTRUCTION

The fireplace depends on the chimney construction. The proper kind of chimney construction is that in which the flue and brick are outside and apart from the wall. The inside type, which is often seen, now days is a waste of space. The fireplace is made to fit into the room too far and in many cases the debris into the wall is carried all the way up to the ceiling.

Whatever the kind of fireplace however, it can be made beautiful or ugly. For beauty simplicity is the keynote. For usefulness and comfort for nervousness and fads and knick-knacks, it is not.

MAKE GOOD GROUP

A comfortable chair on either side with a lamp and table for each make a good group for a room where roominess is rather a premium.

But in a large deep room a comfortable sofa can be placed in the fireplace to make a complete circular group of comfort and ease.

Since the fireplace is quite a large and important attraction in a room the next largest group and most important attraction should be about directly opposed to the fireplace group. This is called balance in furnishing, a feature that must be maintained in a room to look at all home like and charming.

A picture is a good piece of furniture opposite the fireplace, and where there is no sofa in the fireplace the picture may be placed along the opposite wall, or window even. And this opposing piece becomes the center of another group.

The test of the room after these two groups are placed can almost take care of itself.

A PLATYFIRE FIREPLACE SITTING IN A LARGE LIVING ROOM

A view in the center, with a candle tick on either side, or a lamp on the wall above, is all the decoration needed for the mantel. It is simple, dignified and beautiful.

From the fireplace itself, the main furniture group reaches in to the room. The fireplace is the center of this group. It should be peak comfort and rest. The room is the large, overstuffed chairs of a sofa, find suitable pictures about this center.

A comfortable chair on either side with a lamp and table for each make a good group for a room where roominess is rather a premium.

But in a large deep room a comfortable sofa can be placed in the fireplace to make a complete circular group of comfort and ease.

STREET GARAGES UNDER BAN

City Commission to Get New Traffic Proposals

ALL NIGHT PARKING HIT

Curbs Near Fire Plugs to Be Painted Yellow

Elimination of all-night parking of automobiles on Lima streets is proposed by City Manager C. A. Bingham and Police Chief T. A. Lanker in recommendations to city commissioners requesting the enactment of such legislation for immediate enforcement.

Proposed legislation is city wide in scope with special stress on the business section and the square which latter place is mentioned by Bingham and Lanker as an all night open air garage. In their recommendations which are to be presented Monday night to city commissioners in weekly session, Bingham and Lanker claim that parked cars, especially those in the business section, interfere with police marking of streets and street cleaning by city employees.

Officials insist that hundreds of closed cars are parked nightly on city streets. These machines are locked, put in gear and can't be moved, interfering with city employees who are compelled to work at night time in marking and cleaning the streets.

OTHER PLANS

Other parking regulations are proposed by the city in the orders issued Monday by Manager Bingham to the police department to paint the curbs yellow 15 feet each side of fire plugs on Main-st. This course has been adopted to prevent violation of the parking law setting aside the fire plugs as safety zones.

Erection of safety signs at the intersection of Brice-st. and Delphos-st. and at the intersection of accidents at the five corners intersection has been proposed by the city as the aftermath of protests filed Saturday afternoon by citizens with City Manager Bingham.

A committee of five residents of that vicinity in conference with the city manager declared that motorists need around the corner with little concern for public safety endangering the lives of many children who are sent to the drug store at the corner. This is also on the route to school, they declared in obtaining the city's promise of cooperation for action before school season opens.

With the speeding up of traffic in the business district to add congestion city officials are looking forward to the installation of two new traffic lights at High-st. and Main-st. at Market-st. and Elizabeth-st. These lights will be similar to that used at High-st. and Elizabeth-st. and will be installed this week so that they can be used to regulate the expected heavy traffic here during the Mardi Gras celebration on Labor Day.

PARTY LEADERS GATHERING

Thousands Expected at Columbus Meeting Tomorrow

COLUMBUS—(By Associated Press)—Democratic leaders began arriving today for the meeting of the state central committee tonight and for the state platform convention tomorrow at which John W. Davis the party's national standard bearer, will be the principal speaker.

The meeting was completed today for handling one of the largest crowds that ever has attended a state convention inasmuch as the state fair will be an added attraction for out of town visitors. It is expected that thousands will come tomorrow for the double attraction who otherwise would have stayed at home or would have selected some other day to attend the fair. Admission to Memorial Hall where Mr. Davis will speak at one o'clock will be by card only.

Davis is scheduled to arrive at 9:45 a. m. at the union station where he will be met by a reception committee headed by Governor Donahoe and escorted to the DeWitt hotel where a reception will be held. Mrs. Davis will be escorted to the executive mansion where the governors wife and prominent Democratic woman will entertain her. A reception also will be held there for her.

After the Memorial Hall speech tentative plans are for the presidential nominees to visit the state fair and make a short address there in front of the grandstands at three o'clock.

Just what attitude the convention will take toward the Ku Klux Klan issue still remained a matter of conjecture today. In best informed circles it was indicated that the platform may not denounce the Klan by name, but there was no positive declaration that the issue would not be up for a lively scrap before the platform committee. The platform, it was intimated, would be very long and would review in considerable detail the accomplishments of the Donahoe regime.

GREAT PACKING CONCERN IS FORCED TO WALL

DEBT PLACED AT $47,177,000

Wilson & Co. Put in Hands of Receiver

ACTION TAKEN IN JERSEY

Result of Complaint Made by Shareholder

TRENTON, N. J.—(By Associated Press)—Wilson and Co. Inc., one of the large packing establishments has been placed in the hands of a receiver. On complaint of Maurice I. Klein of Newark, Vice Chancellor John H. Rakes has temporarily named State Banking Commissioner Edward Maxson, receiver for the company.

In a lengthy complaint attached to the insolvency charge of Klein, it is alleged that the big packing concern is indebted to various lending institutions for nearly $47,177,000 and has a funded debt outstanding of $47,177,000. Klein claims that he is holder of 25 shares of Wilson and Co. stock with a par value of $2,500 and contends that in at least two recent instances where interest fell due on the company's stocks and bonds the defendant had no cash on hand to pay the stockholders.

Wilson and Co. recently acquired a rendering plant on the outskirts of Trenton and has large packing houses in many parts of the world. Its capital stock is listed on the New York stock exchange and other leading exchanges throughout the world.

DECLARED UNABLE TO PAY—Specifically, Klein's complaint sets forth that 202,500 shares of no par value common stock have been issued by the company and are outstanding together with $12,000,000 in seven per cent cumulative preferred stock. First mortgage six per cent bonds worth over $22,000,000 due April 1941, are included in the company's funded debt, together with convertible six per cent gold bonds in the sum of over $15,000,000 due December 1, 1918, and $9,136,000 in seven and one-half per cent bonds due December 1, 1921.

Klein charges that one June 1 last there became due $400,000 to holders of the six per cent convertible bonds and that the defendant was unable to pay installments because of lack of funds. It is further charged that the firm was unable to meet the semi-annual installment of $345,000 due August 1, last, on the seven and one-half per cent cumulative bonds.

On April 19, last, Klein states the company was financially embarrassed and called a meeting of creditors, at which a creditors' committee was formed. Klein charges that the committee has been unable to satisfactorily adjust the company's finances.

Vice Chancellor Rakes has ordered the defendant company to show cause in the chancery court here September 2 why the receivership should not be made permanent and the company be declared insolvent. His order was accompanied by an order restraining the Wilson company from disposing of any of the assets. The receiver is ordered to post a bond of $250,000.

WINNER OF BOBBED HAIR PRIZE WANTS LONG CURLS BACK

WASHINGTON — (Special)—Miss Katharine Dyer, 17, has a message for American girlhood. Her mother has one for the parents.

Miss Dyer had as lovely a head of glossy black curls as any in Washington, but she fell for bobbing craze. Now despite the fact that she won, out of a field of 2,000 entrants, a prize for the prettiest "Bob" in the capital, she wishes she had her long hair back again.

"You just can't fix bobbed hair the way you want it," she says. "The best effects seem to be impossible and the 'bob' feels tousled all the time. I imagine half the girls who bob feel the same way I do, but most of them are too proud to say so."

"Constant bobbing," added Mrs. Frederick T. Dyer, Katharine's mother, "makes the girls' necks sore and costs lots of money. If a daughter will bob, it's better for her mother to do the bobbing."

The three barbers who awarded the bobbed hair prize to Katharine declared her offering by far the most artistically cut and arranged. This was a joke on the barbering profession, because Mother Dyer, who practices what she preaches, herself did the bobbing.

ITALIAN AIRMAN RESCUED

catelli, missing Italian airman, at 11:35 o'clock last night. He was picked up 125 miles east of Cape Farewell.

The Italian flier and his companions were uninjured, although worn out by fatigue. Motor trouble had forced Locatelli to come down on the water during the flight on Thursday from Reykjavik, Iceland. He was unable to bring his plane into the air again and drifted for 100 miles.

Locatelli requested that his airplane be destroyed and his wish was complied with.

Locatelli's unsuccessful attempt to accompany the two Americans on the hazardous journey over 825 miles of the North Atlantic followed a successful solitary flight from Pisa, Italy, to Scotland by way of England and Ireland.

The Italian originally was to have been one of the pilots on the aerial expedition which Roald Amundsen, Norwegian explorer, planned to make to the North pole and which was later postponed indefinitely.

Locatelli then decided to make the North pole trip but postponed his effort until next year, considering that he needed more experience in Arctic flying before attempting the daring feat of reaching the top of the world by airplane.

When the Italian failed to arrive at Frederiksdal after leaving Iceland with the American fliers, or to be reported from any other point near Cape Farewell at the southern tip of Greenland late Thursday night, Rear Admiral Thomas P. Magruder ordered the American war vessels on patrol near Greenland to search for him. It was this search which was rewarded last night.

The mishap to Lieutenant Locatelli recalls the similar and perhaps more harrowing experience of the late Harry G. Hawker, who in May 1919, attempted a lone flight from New Foundland to Europe.

On the evening of May 18, 1919, Hawker and his companion, Lieutenant Commander McKenzie Grieve, left New Foundland and started on their flight of 1,925 nautical miles. For six days the plane was not heard from and the two aviators were given up as lost. Then on May 25 the British admiralty learned from Butt of Lewis, the northernmost point of the Hebrides islands, that the little Danish steamer, Mary had passed that point and had signalled that she had the aviator on board.

Hawker and his companion had been forced to descend on the water because of a clogged water pipe in the plane's engine and had come down on the water about 50 miles off the Irish coast on the night of May 19.

M'COY'S MOTHER NEAR DEATH

Heart Attack Brought on by Arrest of Son

LOS ANGELES — (By Associated Press) — A court of justice and the bedside of a dying woman today were to be the scenes of two ordeals in the life of Kid McCoy, former pugilist charged with the murder of Mrs. Theresa Mark, here August 12.

In the superior court he was due to plead to eight charges of murder, robbery and a suit with intent to murder, growing out of the shooting of Mrs. Mors and a subsequent holdup and pistol attack in and near the Mors antique shop the day after her death. Later he was to be escorted under heavy guard to the bedside of his mother, Mrs. Mary E. Solby, near death since the news of her son's arrest brought on a heart attack.

To the judge on the bench he was expected to say only "guilty" or "not guilty."

To find words for the stricken woman awaiting him on what probably will be her death bed was another task.

Defense attorneys were expected to make an attempt to have the indictments against McCoy quashed when he appeared in court today, on the ground of alleged irregularities in the grand jury procedure. Failing in this attempt they were expected to enter a plea of not guilty and base their hope on the two-fold defense that McCoy did not shoot Mrs. Mors and that if he did he was innocent.

MAY TALK OVER KLAN ISSUE

Matter Brought to Fore by Davis' Challenge

PLYMOUTH, Vt. — (By Associated Press) — The political situation was up for discussion at a conference here today between President Coolidge and Charles G. Dawes, his running mate. Dawes spoke on Saturday in Augusta, Maine, voicing opposition to the Ku Klux Klan, which he mentioned by name. There was no comment on either Dawes' speech or on the address on Friday by John W. Davis, Democratic nominee, who asked the Republican nominee to join him "by explicit declaration" in eliminating the Klan from campaign debate.

Sleeping Dollars and Idle Merchandise Never Made Any Man Wealthy

There was once a man, an expert in the art of arranging merchandise in a store and in the selection of high quality goods, who decided to open a little store for himself. He purchased the best goods the various markets offered, furnished a beautiful store room and prepared to do business.

He had gone over the matter very carefully and he estimated a very good profit on his merchandise even though prices were moderate and the quality high. There was no reason why he should not be successful in the venture.

One day he awakened to the fact that he was losing money and that unless something was done immediately he would soon be forced to give up his little store. A close investigation suddenly brought to him the realization that profits could never be either counted or collected on goods unless they were sold over the counter.

As a result he contracted for a advertising space in the daily newspaper and carried his message to those who were in need of the merchandise and thus whom he could collect his profits.

The Lima News is a big powerful newspaper with a circulation that covers the district like a blanket.

Let it help you gather the profits lying in idle merchandise.

The "Nervous Wreck" an eccentric, driving motor, is driving Sally from her father's ranch to the station when they run out of gas. Sally takes five gallons from a passing car.

Later, Charlie McSwen, foreman of the ranch, and forces Sally to get out of the car. Underwood, the owner of the ranch, who is in the car, held up the Sheriff, Bob Wells, and the county clerk, and the bandits held up the ranch. Underwood, the owner of the ranch, who is in the car, held up the Sheriff, Bob Wells, and the county clerk, and the bandits held up the ranch.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

"I could make him put the wheel back," said the Wreck, "but I couldn't give him any good reason for it. I suppose I'd have to lock him up after he did it to keep him from telling."

Sally dismissed the idea with a wave of her hand.

"If we can't find the wheel to our own car," she said, "what do you say about trying to make it go home?"

"Perfectly simple," she said.

"I'm not sure about you," she said.

He began ruffling with familiar symptoms.

"Henry, there's no need for you to be sensitive about it. You're not supposed to be a good rider, any more than I'm a good chemist. You haven't had the training. I think you'd make a beautiful rider in time, but you're a very bad one just now. You suffer agony every time you get on a horse."

"You haven't heard me squeal," he said sharply.

"No, I haven't. You wouldn't squeal if you were dying. But so far as making a getaway goes it's not a question of squealing. It's a question of falling off. It's flushed painfully, but she could see no use in dodging the facts.

"I've seen you fall off four times," she said, "three times in one day."

"But the second ride I only fell off once," he declared stubbornly. "I showed improvement, didn't I?"

"You fell off any time the horse stops suddenly, Henry?"

"All right, I admit it," he said. "But after we get started we're not going to do any stopping, are we? And after we've made the getaway, what difference does it make if I do fall off?"

There was something about his stubbornness that secretly delighted her, but she did not mention it.

"Well, we may have to try it," she said, "if you really don't mind falling off."

"I don't mind."

They decided, it came to a question of horses, that the Wreck would take Charlie McSwen's big bay, while Sally would take the rangy animal that Jerome Underwood rode.

"These're the two best horses on the ranch," she said, "with the exception of that ugly roan that one of the boys rides. But he's out riding fences somewhere, so we can't get it. If we are going to steal horses, we want good ones."

"Sure. The best," affirmed the Wreck, speaking as a connoisseur. "We'll have to leave most of our baggage behind, of course. We'll have to travel light and fast—as fast as we can, anyhow."

"Don't worry about me. I'm all right so long as they keep method. If it became necessary to crawl all the way to the Bar-M on hands and knees, or even to Chicago, he would take the same attitude. It was his business to see that Sally reached her destination, whatever it was, and he proposed to attend to it.

"I'll put up all the grub that we can carry," said Sally. "That'll be more important than spare clothes. It will be mostly sandwiches, I'm afraid. What kind do you like?"

"Any kind."

"But you must have some preference."

"I'm not particular."

She beamed at him, and he did not know why. "You're not fussy about your cooking, are you, Henry?"

"Not that I know of."

"It's not the main thing in your life, is it?"

"No."

"And if you were marrying a girl that isn't the first thing you'd think about?"

"What in thunder was she driving at, he wondered? Was she making fun of him? He was not marrying cooks or anybody else. Why couldn't she let him alone?"

"No, I wouldn't think about it at all," he answered, rather stupidly. "Would I be supposed to?"

She laughed without restraint; he was such a queer, awkward person.

"No; it would be rather nice not to think about it," she said. "But, just the same, I'm going to put you up the nicest sandwiches I know how to make."

"All right. Anything at all."

"And I may even expect you to praise them."

"Sure. I will."

She laughed again, but there was not the least hint of teasing in her eyes.

"Henry Williams," she said, "sometimes you can be perfectly lovely. No, I know you don't understand. It makes it better because you don't."

He had no answer for that, and was uncomfortable. For some reason he could not explain, he was red in the face; he felt it. He could not stand women, and he would never learn how.

"I guess I'll have another look for that wheel," he mumbled.

"All right. Good luck, old timer."

She watched him go, a half-amused, half-puzzled look in her eyes. There was a hint of motherliness in the smile on her lips; but it was not all motherliness, either.

The Wreck was making another search of the outbuildings, squinting through his spectacles at places where the wheel might possibly be.

He had looked in all the likely places, so far as he could remember; now he tried looking in the unlikely ones. The part that puzzled him most was his patience and lack of temper. Ordinarily, he ought to have been fuming, with his nerves raw and his muscles twitching with irritation. But a stolid mood seemed to have settled upon him, and he continued his task with a phlegmatic calm that astonished him.

He saw Chester Underwood emerging from the shed where the filly stood on its crutch, but took no notice of him. There was nothing that Chester could contribute in the way of information, and he felt that it was polite to let him alone. The more he searched the more probable it seemed that he would ride away on Charlie McSwen's horse. He would not allow the small matter of a bet to detain him, although he would have found pleasure in triumphing over the foreman of the Underwood ranch.

Sally informed him at lunch time that the sandwiches had been made and put away, and that she hoped he would not complain about them. He merely shrugged. She also told him that she was going for a little ride in the afternoon with Chester. He shrugged again, but there was a scowl that went with it.

She did. He saw them ride away toward the hills, and then spent a part of a miserable afternoon in further quest for the missing wheel. It was none of his business, of course, but it did not seem to him that girl who was engaged to the sheriff, or anybody else, ought to be galloping over the range with any young man who happened to come along.

The afternoon of Jerome Underwood was equally unpleasant. He wanted to get hold of Bob Wells and acquaint him with discoveries, but the sheriff was somewhere on the road and could not be reached by telephone. It seemed to Underwood that the whole system of suppressing crime was unnecessarily primitive. He saw the situation entirely in terms of New York; he expected metropolitan service. He fumed and exploded, and he shot grim innuendoes at Charlie McSwen, who maintained his calm, although he began to be sorry that he had ever bothered himself about obtaining an emergency cook.

Sally came back from her ride, flushed and charming. She told Chester that it had been delightful, every foot of the way, even saying it in the presence of the Wreck, who happened to be in the vicinity of the corral, apparently still looking for an essential part of his filly.

Back in the kitchen again, she became serious and restless. She waited for Henry Williams; she had something to say. But the Wreck was evidently minded to keep aloof. He did not appear until after she had sent Timothy to find him, with a message that she wanted to talk to him. He came into the kitchen with a sullen look on his face and without a word, began putting on his apron, grimly resigned to the performance of at least one more hateful task.

"Never mind the apron yet," she said. "There's something more important."

He waited for the explanation. "We may not have to ride horses," she whispered, after a cautious glance to make sure there were no eavesdroppers.

IMPORTANT NOTES ON CANNING

The following estimates may be used as a general guide in determining the amount of food required for canning vegetables:

|------------------------|-------|
| 1 1/2 lbs. spinach     | 1 pt. |
| 1 lb. chard            | 1 pt. |
| 12-15 baby beets       | 1 pt. |
| 20 carrots             | 1 pt. |
| 2 1/2 lb. string beans | 1 pt. |
| 2 qts. peas            | 1 pt. |
| 4 small ears of corn   | 1 pt. |

Pack the vegetables loosely in clean, tested jars to within one-half inch of the top, or one inch if corn is being canned. Shake the jars lightly but do not press down the vegetables with a spoon.

An Intimate Story of Innermost Emotions Revealed in Private Letters

LETTER FROM JOHN ALDEN PRESCOTT TO SYDNEY CARTON

If there ever was a lost man, Sid, it is your without but evidently forgotten chum, John Alden Prescott. With my wife and my only man friend gone completely out of my life, I am wandering about a howling wilderness that mistaken people have named the world.

Altho outwardly calm, inside of my physical body there seems to be a whirling dervish that up to this time I had erroneously called my mind. I can't eat, can't sleep, can't think. I'm in a worse condition than when I was so desperately in love with Leslie that I could only think of her.

This is the state that I'm in just at present. I catch Mrs. Atherton looking at me very queerly from time to time. Yesterday she said: "What a strange noise—did you speak?"

I answered gruffly, "No, I hiccuped."

"I thought it was a groan," she remarked.

That woman is positively uncanny. She seems to read my very thoughts.

I have only had a somewhat peremptory command to send or bring her little Jack from Leslie since she left. Can you beat that? I gave her about 45 hours after she reached her father's house to either return to me or ask me to come to her, and here she has been gone nearly a week. I didn't think it possible for her to be so stubborn. I never knew, either, that she was such a mercenary creature.

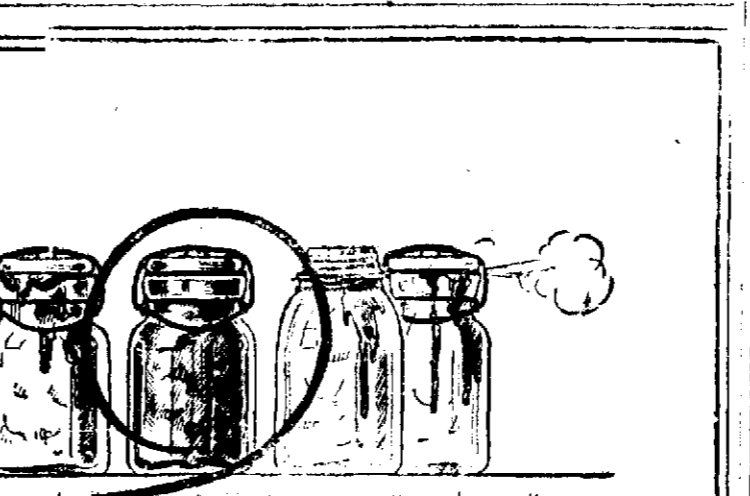

I just can't make it out. You know how much Leslie forgave and forgot, and how sweet she was when she adopted the boy. In that she fulfilled my highest idea of womanhood. Since then I have always felt she would stand by me if I were accused of murder, and now she balks at sending back to the man who gave them to her, a string of pearls, altho I, her husband, have requested, in

There are two important things a jar rubber must do if it is to make a perfect seal—first it must stretch, then it must "set." If it fails to do these two things, it will bulge, blow out, or dry up.

A jar rubber must have just enough stretch for you to slip it easily around the neck of the jar. If it stretches too much it cannot snap back to its original size—or "set." The "set" must be so snug and close that no air can steal in once your jar is sealed. Only then can you be sure of the safety of your season's pack.

LAFOLLETTE CAMPAIGN MANAGERS SELECTED

WASHINGTON — Leading supporters of the LaFollette-Wheeler ticket prepared today to put into effect at once decisions reached by the national executive committee at last week's lengthy conference in Washington. The campaign management for southern territory has been selected and the speaking program of Senator Wheeler, the vice presidential candidate, has been laid out in considerable detail, but neither has been announced.

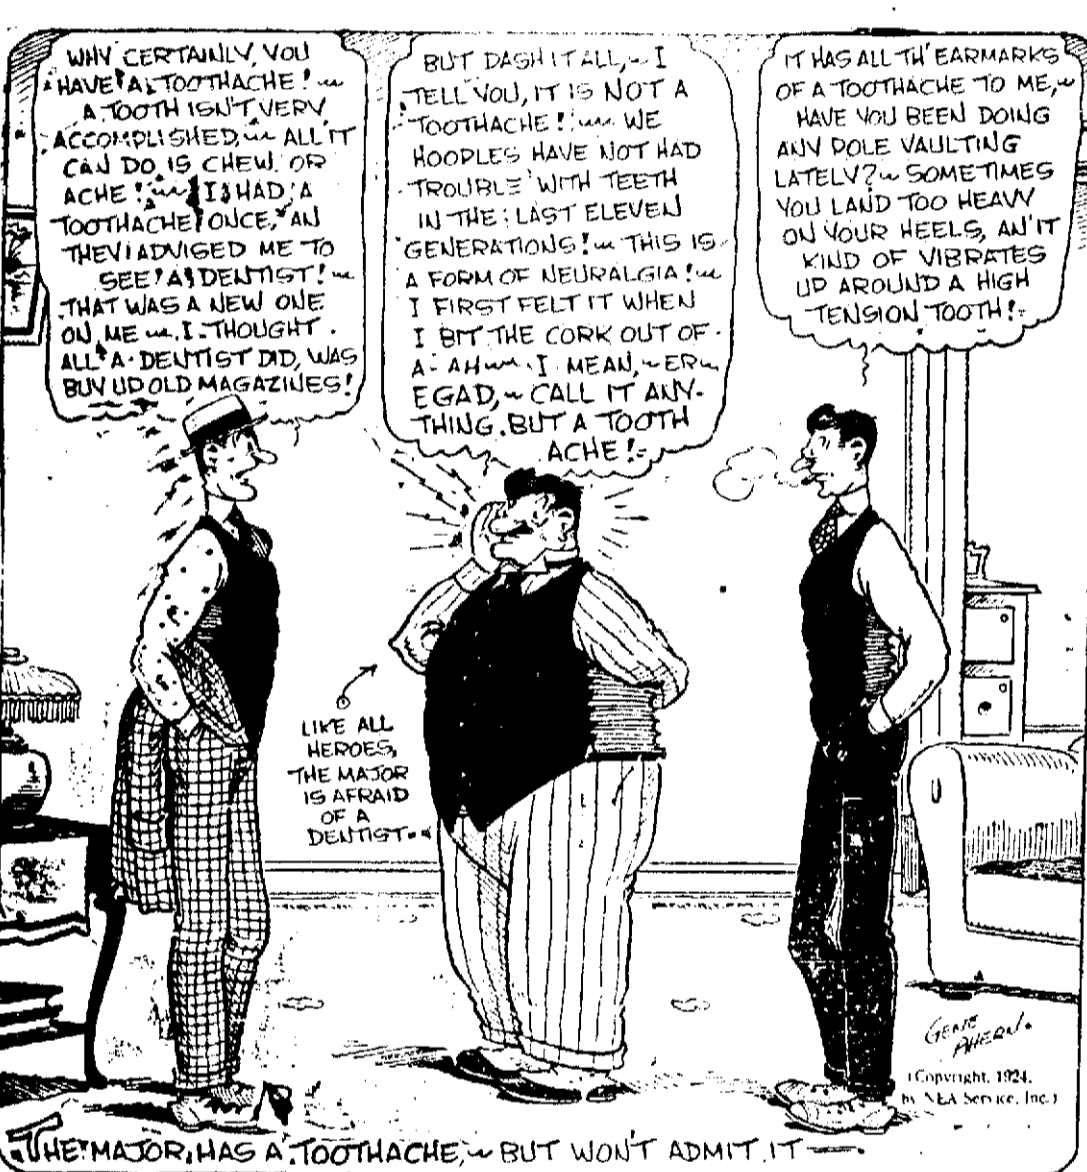

Decisions made known after the committee concluded its sessions last night indicated that the national candidates themselves would be called upon to accept the responsibility for endorsing or rejecting any congressional or state candidates. The committee authorized W. H. Johnston, chairman of the conference for progressive political action, who has charge of solicitation from labor organizations, and Herman Ekern of Wisconsin in charge of collection from the public to conduct a drive for campaign funds.

When Women Begin To Lose Youth and Charm

Dr. Frederic S. Kelle, the New York author of medical text books, whose opinions are greatly valued, writes: "When the nerve tissue begins to lose its vitality, women acquire a youthful and vivaciousness. Her lively, pleasant disposition fades away—she becomes irritable, moody and despondent. It would be a godsend if more men and women were aware of the efficacy of Bire-Phosphate."

Thousands of thin, run-down people whose nervous energy is nearly exhausted are turning to Bire-Phosphate as a revitalizer the nerves and brings back cheer and mental brightness.

AVIATORS MAKE ANOTHER HOP

American Fliers Arrive at Irvigut, Greenland

HALIFAX, N. S. — (United Press) — American around the world airmen are just one hop from the North American continent today as they pause to from the North American continent.

The next flight, the last hazardous over the water trip of their adventures, will take them to Indian Harbor, Labrador.

The two fliers — Lieutenant Lowell Smith and Eric Nelson — arrived at Irvigut yesterday after a speedy, uneventful trip from Fredericksdal. The fliers hopped off at 1:50 p. m. (Greenwich mean time) and arrived at Irvigut at 4:00 p. m. (G. M. T.).

They flew along the western coast of Greenland and kept a lookout for a trace of Lieutenant Locatelli, missing pilot, but saw no signs of him.

According to schedule the fliers are now just four jumps removed from home shores. From Irvigut they will sail to Indian Harbor then down the eastern coast of North America with stops at Hawkes Bay, Pletou and then the arrival in Boston.

At Pletou the two airmen will be joined by Lieutenant Leigh Wade third member of the globe circling party. A new plane will be given to him at Pletou and he will finish the flight with his two comrades of the air.

TWO HOUR TRIP — (By Associated Press) — The American world fliers prepared at Irvigut today for another hazardous lap in their journey, a 500 mile jump across water to Indian Harbor, Labrador.

Meagre reports received at the navy department last night told of the flight of Lieutenants Smith and Nelson from Fredericksdal to Irvigut, presumably yesterday, in two hours and 13 minutes. It was assumed here that they too advantage of improved weather conditions to get to the Irvigut base because it offered more complete equipment than was provided at Fredericksdal for changing their engines and overhauling their planes, which, Lieutenant Smith reported, would be completed before the flight is resumed.
